NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Rev. W. J. Smith delivered a very at Fort Street Church, on last Sunday evening, The revival services have been continued with earnestness during the week under the charge of Rev. J. A. Cruzan, Rev. W. J. Smith and Mr. Hallenbeck.

The following programme of music will be played by the Band, in Emma Square, this afternoon, commencing at half-past 4 o'clock :-March-" Deflir.". Quadrille-" German Songs," Selection-" The Lombardian ...Lienvert Galop-" Pomone,"

Among other marked improvements which ow the great strides which Mahukona has made of late, we have to note that the S. F. and Honolulu Transfer Company have extended their field of operations by establishing a mail and baggage express between Mahukona and Kohala. Mr. Hallenbeck and party travelled in the company's double team car, and expressed delight at the ease and comfort provided for this long ourney. The car meets each steamer on arrival for the conveyance of passengers and luggage; and vice versa on the departure of the steamer.

REVIVAL SERVICES ON SUNDAY .- At Fort Street Church Sunday Morning, J. A. Cruzan will preach on "The Power of the Cross." In the vening there will be a Union Platform Meeting. Rev. Dr. Damon, Rev. Wm. Smith, of San Francisco, and Evangelist Hallenbeck will make brief addresses upon the important theme, What Shall be the Results and the Future of this Revival?" Mr. Cruzan will speak to the Hawaiians at Kawaishao Church in the evening. During the afternoon the usual meeting for young men will be held in the Lyceum, when W. J. Smith will lecture on "The young man's

Two runaways to record this week-one on Saturday afternoon, and one on Sunday morning. The first-named was a pair of black ponies attached to a wagon loaded with oats and a variety of groceries. They tore up Fort-street whose duty it will be assist you in your increas- at full speed without any driver, finally unhitching themselves from the vehicle by coming in contact with a lamp-post at the corner of Beretania-street. An irreparable smash was the consequence, but no damage to the animals. The runaway on Sunday was also a team-Dri ceeded in demolishing the doctor's carriage, and were finally arrested in Richard-street. Scarcely a week passes by but we are called upon to record ome similar accident.

Some needed repairs have been executed. during the week to the wooden cells at the foot of the Police Station yard. The object of this work has been to prevent the recurrence of such an incident as occurred on Tuesday afternoon ast, when a Norwegian who had run away from his contract service on Maui, and was to have been sent back again by the Likelike, succeeded in making his escape by lifting one of the floor-ing boards of the cell he was confined in. From the appearance of the new work, it does not appear probable that anyone will be able to repeat the enterprise. A substantial cross slab has been laid upon the flooring within the doorsills crossing each plank of floor, and other precautions taken to make the cells secure.

Some very successful revival meetings have been held at Kawaiahao Church during the the church was crowded to hear an address from Mr. W. H. Rice, who speaks the native language fluently. Mr. H. Swinton, a recent convert, and Mr. Justice Judd, Mr. H. A. P. Carter, Mr. P. C. Jones, Mr. Henry Waterhouse and several others also addressed the assembly and were listened to with evident interest. Testimony as to their conversion was given by several natives. Mr. Hallenbeck held a service in the Church on Wednesday evening, his address being interpreted by Mr. Rice. An enquiry and prayer meeting was held after the service. On Thursday evening the Rev. Dr. Hyde held a similar service and last night Mr. Hallenbeck again took charge.

The cook of the ship Suffolk was sentenced, on Wednesday, by Judge Bickerton, to six months' imprisonment, with hard labor, for a violent assault on one of the seamen of that ship. The assault was of an aggravated character, and the last act of the cook was to seize his comrade by the throat, force out his tongue, and bite it so savagely that he nearly severed from it a piece about three-quarters of an inch long. Both the assailant and his victim were very drunk at the time. His Honor sentenced him to six months' imprisonment at hard labor, and, Ex. J. S. Walker, Minister of Finance, Hon, at the same time, expressed his regret that he could not give a heavier penalty. The prisoner, by leave of the Bench, addressed his victim with a warning against drink, urging him to rememwork on board ship, and been a good comrade, and that now, because of indulgence in drink, he was going to spend six months in Honolulu

The variety performances at the Theatre on Thursday evenings were of an attractive ...D. W Kaseamoku peared to advantage in the "Rehearsal," which was given with spirit by the company generally. Miss Stein's jig always pleases, and Wray's grotesques, and Elleford and Hall's Irish comicalities continue to delight. This evening director to be a bumper. For this occasion Mr. Andy Prown has volunteered to sing one of his favorite and dance, "The Honolulu Reef." The local allusions in this song are sure to "bring down" the house. Wray has some new specialities; Effection has some new songs; and Finnerty intends to excel himself. The principal piece of the evening will be "Joshua Whitcombe." JOHN S. Makawao, Hilo, and North Kohala three per Arrival of the Princess and Suite in Boats at Maliko.

> Speeches of Her Royal Highness at the Native Church and East Maui Female Seminary, Makawao.

Long before dawn on Saturday, the 10th inst.,

and up to the arrival of the Princess Regent and her Royal Sister the Princess Miriama Likelike and suite, accompanied by the Hon. J. M. Kapena and lady, at Maliko, could be seen on the bold cliffs overlooking Maliko Bay, and for many miles along the north-east coast of East Maui, many persons anxiously looking seaward in the direction of Hoolawa and Keanae to get a glimpse of the boats containing the eagerly looked-for royal party; and for nearly an hour before the faintest outline of the boats could be distinguished by anyone else, even by the aid of the telescope, they were descried by many of the Hawaiians. When, however, the words "Eia, ke hele mai nei ko kakou mau Alii Wahine punahele aloha nui ia "- here come our beloved Princesses)-from many an eager watcher on the heights above was heard by those awaiting in the valley below-then broke forth exclamations of joy; and as the first boat flying the Royal Standard, on board of which was Her Royal Highness the Princess Regent, closely followed by the second boat, on board of which was the Princess Miriams Likelike, with the remainder of the suite, could be plainly seen making direct for the harbor, a genuine Hawaiian expression of "Aloha!" and devotion among the people-both native and foreign-for Her Highness was heard on every side. Not a few, however, felt surprised at the hardihood that could have induced the royal party to make the trip in such frail craft on the open sea.

The Princess Regent and party landed Maliko about 12.20 p.m. on Saturday. As the boats neared the landing, several of the affectionate and loyal native people rushed into the sea and would have carried the boats ashore, but other arrangements having been previously made to facilitate the disembarkation prevented their doing so. On landing, Her Royal Highness was heartily cheered and most enthusiastically received by a large assemblage of the people, both native and foreign. Now it was apressive sermon on the doctrine of the Blood, a genuine greeting commenced, in which the people gave expression to their love and affection for the Princess in a most unmistakable manner-in ancient Hawaiian meles-by kissing her hands and feet, and other forms of salutation expressive of deep emotion, love, and respect. What a contrast in the hearty ovation to this Princess as compared with the position of some of the most powerful Princes and rulers of other lands-where it appears to be the principal object of their people to destroy them. After this preliminary greeting, the Princess, uite, and escort proceeded in carriages and on horseback to the house of Mr. Mahoe, where Her Royal Highness and a large number of invited guests sat down to a most bountiful repast. The company was truly cosmopolitan and representative. After spending some time here, and receiving the greetings of the people, the royal party left in carriages for Mr. David Crowingburg's, by whom the Princess and party were invited, and where they spent Saturday night and the following Sunday. During Sunday, and up to late on Sunday night and Monday morning, many visitors were announced, and received by the Princess; a number of foreign ladies also called, Messages were sent by many foreign residents to Her Royal Highness, placing their carriages at her disposal. On Sunday afternoon the Princess Regent and party attended Divine service at the Native Church at Makawao, in which both the Princesses took part in the singing; and, in accordance with notice given on the previous Saturday to the people to meet the Princess Regent, there assembled a crowd Sunday for many years.

SPEECH OF THE PRINCESS REGENT AT THE NATIVE CHURCH AT MAKAWAO. After the service Her Royal Highness delivered an extempore address, which was listened to with the most profound respect and attention by all present. The pupils of East Maui Seminary were present in full force. The royal lady feelingly stated the object of her visit to the different parts of the kingdom, and the object of His Majesty's tour around the world, and the good results to be expected therefrom; and alluded to the serious responsibility which devolved upon her as Princess Regent of conducting the government on His Majesty's departure and the many unpleasant and disagreeable inc dents attendant on such a position, and said that the life of a Princess has its own trials and perplexities; and also alluded to her great desire to meet and see the people whom she had been so ong prevented from meeting, owing to the prevalence of the epidemic,-but that now we had good reason for congratulation on the result of communication and traffic. The Princess feelingly alluded to the fearful mortality occurring among the people at the present time, and the necessity of more attention being paid to the expressed her pain and deep sorrow at such a sad state of affairs; and Her Royal Highness also desired to impress upon the minds of her hearers the great need of a knowledge of the laws of health and the care of ourselves and children. in order to preserve the life of the nation. The Hon. Helekunihi replied on the part of th VISIT TO THE EAST MAULI FEMALE SEMINARY.

On Monday forenoon, 12th inst., the Princess Regent and Princess Likelike paid their respects to the widow of the late Rev. J. S. Green, and also week. On Tuesday evening the lower room of visited the East Mani Female Seminary, accompanied by her suite and a large escort, where she was received at the main entrance by the principal (Miss Carpenter) and her assistants with the respect and attention due to her rank. -after which the royal party were introduced to the school-room, where the pupils were assembled awaiting the royal visitor, when the pupils were exercised in reading and singing, in English, and calisthenic exercises. In their exercises, the scholars showed a good capacity for thinking and reasoning, and their ability to illustrate their ideas by appropriate gestures. The musical part high degree by the royal party,-and, on the whole, Her Royal Highness commended the dilligence of the pupils, and the thoroughness and efficiency of the instructors, and called the attention of the pupils to the advantages which they enjoyed in such an excellent institution, and under such able instructors, and alluded to the bright hopes which she earnestly entertained on their coming forth from such a school. After bidding a kindly aloha to the worthy principal assistants, and the pupils, in whom she mani fested such a tender regard, the royal lady proceeded to Paea to visit the new English chool recently established there by the Board of Education. The Princess expressed herself the party proceeded to the

RAILBOAD DEPOT, ber that he was a man who had always done his where a large crowd had assembled to greet the distinguished visitors. The railroad cars were evidently prepared and tastefully festooned for the occasion. There was also a large number of young ladies from Wailuku at the depot neatly and uniformly dressed, awaiting to make their devoir to the Princess, and to accompany the royal party to Wailuku. Near the depot a sumpcharacter. The bill was a good one on each occasion. Miss Howard and Mr. Stevens apinvited, but which, on account of the lateness of the hour, had to be declined; and here it was that the Makawao escort parted from the Princess, after seeing her safely off on the train, surrounded by hosts of loyal subjects from Wai-Stevens is to have a benefit, and the house ought kapu, Wailuku. Some of the poor lepers (about seventy-five), radely uniformed as soldiers, were drawn up in order as an escort. A temporary wharf had been made; a large lanai, or booth, for reception, and the pathway to it from the beach | vance may yet be invented to conceal them. strewn with evergreens and flowers. Many arches with loyal inscriptions were crected, and a remarkable display made, considering the unhappy state of the people, the short notice of about two days of the expected visit, -and all was devised the Superintendent, Mr. Meyers. The lepers cheered at first their Alii Makuahine (Princess Mother) as they hailed her, and then sorrow overspread their distorted countenances. The Princess Regent was deeply moved on beholding the effects of the disease on the people, so many of whom she knew personally. She wanted to speak, but her lips only trembled so she signified to Hon. J. M. Kapena to speak or her to the poor unfortunates. He spoke thus substantially in the Hawaiian language :-'My FRIENDS,-Afflicted with disease, know

our Royal Mother, the Princess Regent, speak with you. But they are so overcome with elings of anguish at your woeful condition, that they find it impossible to speak; but you behold their tears of love and sorrow pouring forth from their eyes. It fills one's heart with leep grief, agonizing indeed, to behold your hardly recognizable. But there is consolation in learning from you that you find ample subistence here, and that you are cared for in your sad abode. Now, in view of your situation there is one thing to bless you and thank you for, and that is the willing manuer in which you have delivered yourselves to fate and banishment from relations and friends, for by such means alone will your compatriots escape from being sharers in this desolating disease. You are all aware that our King has taken a tour around the world; and I am most happy to say to you all, my dear suffering friends, that whilst our King is on his way from place to place in far distant lands, he has never forgotten you, and never forgets to look for means to benefit you. He has been ever inquiring to find doctors and medicines that can cure this disease. On his arrival at Japan, and on his learning that hospital whose fame was all over the land for one of his suite to invite him to an interview, so that he (our King) might personally receive some information regarding the treatment of this disease. And not only while at Japan did His Majesty look for this information, but everywhere he went, whenever he heard of leprosy being treated, he inquired and collected all in formation regarding it. By this you will perceive, my friends in affliction, that our King has never forgotten you, but has made every effort to succeed in finding help and succour for you, his poor, unfortunate subjects. With these few remarks, my friends, I invite you, one and all, o send up your appealing prayers to heaven whence rest for the mind and body comes while lasting life in the other world." The whole assemblage continued to weep while Kapena spoke. Every eye was wet with tears, and the Princesses freely mingled theirs with the sufferers. Rev. P. W. Kaama and D. Puni spoke in behalf of their fellow lepers. From thence the Princess Regent and party rode to the Hospital and around the settlement, and left at 5 p.m., to return to Honolulu.

The New Palace.

We reported in a recent issue of the ADVERTISER upon the progress recently made at the new Iolani Palace. A short description of the building, now that it is approaching completion, may not be uninteresting to our readers, especially to those who are residing at a distance, and realize with difficulty the changes which have occurred in the Honolulu they were once familiar with

The main body of the New Palace forms a substantial rectangular mansion. There is a tower at each corner, but these towers are not part of the main building: they flank the wide verandahs and balconies of the Palace which but for these interruptions, would run all round | New Mansion for Mr. Claus Spreckels. such as has not been seen in that church on it. Over the main entrance, in the middle of the front elevation rises another tower of greater dimensions, and this feature of the design is repeated at the back. Like the corner towers parts of the verandah and the balcony reexpected to give to the building a more imposing appearance than the actual dimensions of by the rules of common sense and the inspiranurture, care, and fostering of children, and tinguished personages he is from time to time may be selected to lay it out and plant it. called upon to entertain, and with a residence The house itself is of two stories with an suitable to his position and diguity.

This was needed, as no ball-room is included in the plan of the building-unless it were intended by the architect that the sacred precints of the throne-room should be invaded by dancers. The apartments of the King and Queen occupy the rear or manka side of the Palace on this floor. The King's room which is and her Royal Sister, animated with warm love on the Ewa side, is 25 feet x 30, with dressing for you all, have come here to meet you, and to room and bath-room, etc., opening from it. Adjoining is the Library, designed to be used also as a Privy Council Chamber, an apartment 22 feet x 30 feet. The front room on the same side of the building is of similar size, and goes by the name of the music-room. The Queen's apartment, is the same size as His Majesty's, and there are on the same side of the building, features—many of you old familiar faces—so and there are on the same side of the building badly marked by this dreadful disease as to be two guest chambers of about 23 feet x 30 feet The rooms in the corner towers form agreeable additions to the apartments with which they communicate, being entered directly from them, They are each 12 feet x 12 feet, having doors leading on to the balconies on either hand and large windows in the outer walls. All the rooms on this floor are in an advanced stage, the carpenter's and plumber's work being nearly complete, and even the telephone instruments and electric bells being in their places. His Majesty will have distinct telephonic communication with the Queen's apartments, and with the Chamberlain's room, besides being connected with the general system of the city. In a small room on the left hand side of the entrance to the Library, there is a winding staircase by which the attic rooms, the promenade on the roof, and the upper stories are reached. Some baggage rooms have been constructed there was a physician at the head of a leper | in the roof, but otherwise the attic story is confined to one long room which stretches from curing leprosy, our King immediately dispatched | front to back, and gives access to the rooms in the towers. This is lighted by a large central lantern whose general design is similar to that in which the towers are finished. It now only remains to describe the basement This is approached by two main entrances, one at either end of the building, and by a staircase from the main hall. It is divided into a large number of apartments, some of which do not enjoy much light. They would all have been defective in this particular, but for the adoption of a suggestion made by Mr. Moore, the present superintending architect of the building. Moore took charge of the work in October last very soon came to the conclusion that if the basement was to be of any practical use, it would not do to let it be buried from five to six feet in the soil. An area 6 feet in width has therefore been dug out all around the Palace, providing light and ventilation and keeping the rooms dry. Some very pleasant apartments have been contrived in this basement; those at the corners of the building being the best. These rooms extend under the verandahs as well as under the rest of the building, so that they have, with the passage a total floor-space of 100 feet x 140 feet, less so much as is taken up by the outer walls and the piers which support the main building, 'The Chamberlain's apartments occupy one corner, another is understood to be set apart for His Majesty's work-shop and laboratory, a third is intended for a billiard-room, but will not serve that purpese very well, except at night. The kitchen is in the middle of the building, and is to be fitted with every convenience. The rest of the basement is devoted to servants' rooms, pantries and store-rooms, bath-rooms, and other necessary

The erection of the new Palace will necessitate a re-arrangement of the grounds in which it stands. No design for this was, so far as we are aware, determined upon before His Majesty's departure for Europe. This matter, which ought not to be long delayed now, will no doubt be promptly taken in hand when the King returns,
